     ATLANTA, Nov. 1 /PRNewswire/ -- eHatchery, the Southeast's leading private technology incubator, announced today the addition of Michael Coles and David Hayden to its Board of Managers. Mr. Coles and Mr. Hayden join a group of highly talented professionals that combine the qualities of entrepreneurial success, seasoned operational experience and technical innovation. Other Board members include: Tim Cobb, founder and CEO of edaflow; Bill Gross, founder and Chairman of idealab!; and Mark Lamarre; Managing Director of the Technology Investment Banking group of Donaldson, Lufkin and Jenrette.
     "We are honored and privileged to have such well-respected leaders join the eHatchery team," said Jeff Levy, founder and CEO of eHatchery.
"eHatchery and our portfolio companies will definitely benefit from the experience, expertise and guidance that Michael and David bring to our Board."
     Mr. Coles is an accomplished businessman, community leader, education advocate and family man. In 1977 with an initial investment of only $8000, he founded what has become the nationally successful Great American Cookie Company. Today, the company has hundreds of stores nationwide with sales over $100 million. Michael is Vice Chairman and co-founder of Charter Bank and Trust which is now part of Synovus and is the 1998 recipient of the Beta Gamma Sigma National Entrepreneur of the Year Award.
     Mr. Coles is Chairman of the Georgia Film and Video Advisory Commission and Chairman of the Board of Trustees of Kennesaw State University, whose business school is named the Michael J. Coles College of Business. He also serves on the Upper Chattahoochee Riverkeeper Board, as well as Global Green USA, the American affiliate of Green Cross International, founded by Mikhail Gorbachev. In addition, Michael serves on many non-profit boards including The Walker School and The Carter Center.
He holds a Masters from Louisiana State University as a Certified Franchise Executive and an Honorary Doctorate from Kennesaw State University.
     Mr. Hayden founded Critical Path in February 1997 and served as its Chairman, President and CEO from inception until November 1998. He continues to serve as the Company's Chairman and provides strategic business and product vision. Prior to founding Critical Path, Mr. Hayden was co-founder, Chairman, President and CEO of The McKinley Group, creators of Magellan, the highly popular Internet search engine, which was sold to Excite in August 1996.
     Mr. Hayden currently serves as Chairman of the Board for MeetChina.com, China's leading trade portal and Chairman of NameTree . com
, a domain naming company. He is also a board member for HTVN, a rapidly growing Hispanic television media network serving the needs of the Hispanic population. In addition, Hayden sits on various boards of many start-up companies, providing vision and leadership.
     Mr. Hayden recently delivered the Key Note Address, "The Internet Is A Domain of Thinking and Acting," at the World Bank Government Borrowers Forum in Rome. Subsequently, this speech was printed in the June edition of Vital Speeches of the Day. In the July 26, 1999 issue of Forbes magazine Hayden was recognized as a member of the "E-Gang," The New Digital Entrepreneurs. Mr. Hayden holds a B.A. in Political Science from Stanford University.

HOUSTON, Aug 14, 2001 (BUSINESS WIRE) - iExalt, Inc. (OTCBB:IXLT), a Christian products and services company with significant technology and Internet-related activities, today announced the election of Raymond "Butch" Corson, Dane B. West and James A. Ryffel to the company's board of directors.
The three new directors provide an impressive track record of growth and success in Internet strategies, insight and financial expertise that solidifies the company's position as a dominant player in the Christian marketplace.
"We are blessed to be able to welcome Butch, Dane and Jim to the board," said Donald W. Sapaugh, chairman and chief executive officer of iExalt. "All three have major contributions to make in the strategic planning and direction of the company because of the wealth of experience and wisdom they bring to the table. Their willingness to serve as directors confirms the phenomenal opportunity we have to be a leading provider of products, services and Internet solutions to the Christian community. We believe the addition of their leadership will help the company achieve positive cash flow, profitability and continued growth, and we are humbled by their willingness to serve in this position."

Raymond "Butch" Corson, former senior vice president of Network Solutions, Inc., is currently a senior partner for Telecommunications, Internet Applications, and Electronic Commerce for MAPA. He is also managing director of Sunrise Valley Partners, an incubator for small start-ups. He also holds board positions for SoftCard Systems, Inc. a small card technology firm, and NameTree , Inc ., an Internet infrastructure company focused on DNS management and outsourcing.

Dane B. West is co-founder of Crosswalk.com, Inc., the leading Christian Internet portal. The company's annual advertising revenues grew from $17,000 in 1997 to $6.4 million in 1999. West served as a director of the company from its inception in 1993 until May 2001, and now wants to offer his expertise and support to help with the growth of iExalt. Currently Mr. West is the president of The West Group, a consulting firm specializing in launching and building early-stage companies. He is an ordained minister and completed doctoral studies in educational administration at the University of Virginia.

James A. Ryffel is president and founding Partner of Woodcrest Capital, LLC, a Fort Worth, Texas based diversified venture finance firm. Mr. Ryffel has been the president of Woodcrest Management, Inc., a real estate firm for the past 19 years. Ryffel was a founding investor and former director of Flashnet Communications, Inc., one of the largest Internet service providers in North America. The company was recently sold to Mexico-based Prodigy. Additionally, he is founder and chairman of the board of directors of Hispanic Television Network, Inc. (OTCBB:HTVN), the third largest and fastest growing Spanish-language television broadcaster in the United States. Through Woodcrest Capital, Ryffel is a participant in strategic financing for the media, entertainment, technology, software, healthcare, ranching and real estate industries.

Headquartered in Houston, iExalt, Inc. was founded in 1999 to provide Christian products, services and Internet solutions to the Christian community. The company's strategy is to acquire, develop and manage a large channel of media (print, radio, software and Internet) in order to leverage its products and services in a cost-effective manner, and to migrate successful products and services to the Web. The iExalt family of companies includes:

       --   iExalt.com, a Christian Internet destination
       --   ISP filtering at www.CleanWeb.net
       --   Christian Happenings, a Christian events magazine
       --   Christian Times newspapers
       --   ListenFirst.com , a Christian music news site
       --   iSermons.com and TheParentLink.com, subscription-based resources for leaders

-- ChristianSpeakers.com, the nation's leading Christian speakers bureau
-- ChristianArtists.com, a full-service talent agency
-- iExalt Electronic Publishing, a digital content library
-- Life Perspectives and Dawson McAllister Live, nationally recognized radio programs
-- Rapha Christian Counseling and PremierCare, healthcare related management services

Domain Names Are Now Capable of Actually Performing Work for Their Owners;

They Are No Longer Just a Passive Mechanism for Identifying a Website.

FAIRFAX, Va., Sept. 4 /PRNewswire/ -- NameTree, Inc., an engineering company focused on research and development in the area of domain name management and Internet navigation, has added intelligence to domain names. Domain names now have the intelligence to unobtrusively identify a customer and then automatically display personalized content.

Two new products, Local Lync and Language Lync were released on August 25, 2001, and both incorporate the new NameTree technology.

Local Lync identifies the geographic location of a customer and then automatically directs the customer to the appropriate content. For example, if a website has separate content for France, Spain and Italy, and a customer is querying the site from within France, the system will automatically display the content for France. Customers located in Spain querying the same website would automatically see the content intended for people in Spain.

The intent of Local Lync is that customers no longer have to navigate through long selection processes, often in a language they are not familiar with, to get to the desired content. It has been demonstrated that forcing customers to navigate to their preferred content decreases the probability of their returning to the site. The expected result from an implementation of Local Lync is lower abandonment rates, improved attendance and increased revenues.

Other uses of Local Lync include having multiple owners share a single domain name, each using the name for customers in their respective geographic locations; also website owners who have to comply with international, national, or local legislation, can control the content displayed to customers based on the geographic location of the customer.

Language Lync, the second recently released product, unobtrusively identifies the preferred language of the customer, and then automatically displays content in the preferred language. For example, a customer whose preferred language is Spanish, and who is visiting a website that has content in both English and Spanish, will automatically be displayed the Spanish language content.

Implementation of both Local Lync and Language Lync is extremely simple and takes less than one minute for each geographic location or language. Neither product requires any modifications to the website itself. Both products are implemented utilizing the user-friendly interface available on the NameTree website: http://www.nametree.com .

NameTree is already working on additional applications of their new technology, as well as developing the next generation that is expected to provide revolutionary advancements.

Both Local Lync and Language Lync can be reviewed, purchased, and implemented from NameTree's website: http://www.nametree.com . Both products are also available for resale.
